Lesson guidelines

New Round-Up is a fun, practical English grammar practice book that supplements your coursebook. It is perfect for extra grammar practice at the end of a lesson or as homework. It is designed to be used with students who are studying English in different situations. Level 6 is for upper- intermediate students.

New Round-Up 6 English Grammar Practice is divided into 12 units, each of which focuses on one or more areas of grammar. Within each unit there are clear and colourful grammar reference boxes and a series of straightforward, mainly write-in activities to practise the grammar. After every third unit there is a Progress Check which gives students the chance to consolidate what they have learnt in the previous units. There is also a Revision section at the back of the book.

Use the Progress Checks to help you and your students identify the grammar points that need further explanation and practice. You can use them in two ways:

1. as a diagnostic test to help you identify grammar points that students have difficulty with
2. to help students identify the grammar points they need to revise and practise before they do the Revision at the end of each section

The Revision section provides exercises which test students' progress and comprehension of grammar points.

Your Teacher's Guide has the answer key for the exercises in the Grammar Practice book and a set of photocopiable tests with keys as well as quizzes which are to be taken at the end of each unit. These tests can save you preparation time and give your students a good idea of their progress. Students will be well prepared for each test once they have successfully completed the appropriate revision unit.

Level 6 of New Round-up Grammar Practice is accompanied by a CD-ROM.

Using New Round-Up

Choose exercises from the Grammar Practice book that practise or revise language that has been presented. You may want to use whole units or select parts of units. Do not feel that you have to use all the exercises in a unit.

The exercises can be used by simply following the instructions in the book and instructing students to write in the answers. Alternatively, when there is time in class, you can use them orally first with the whole class or as pairwork or groupwork.

Oral practice

It is a good idea to do the exercises orally first, then go on to do the writing. English spelling can be confusing. By starting with oral practice, students get a chance to hear how the word sounds and concentrate on the meaning before they have to start worrying about the written form.

Whole class

New Round-Up 6 includes several exercises that you can use with the whole class to work on students' pronunciation and intonation. These are especially well-suited to whole class practice because they give you a chance to check on students' pronunciation and help them improve it through student-student correction or by modelling the pronunciation yourself. An exercise that is well-suited to this type of oral practice is:

Unit 12 Ex. 1 (wh-questions)

Give students time to look at the exercise before they have to do it out loud. Then select students at random to do the exercise. If students do not know who will be asked to speak next, they will have to pay closer attention and concentrate on all the items in case they are chosen next.

In Unit 12 Ex. 16 (question tag intonation) you will need to refer to the key in the Teacher's Guide for the intonation patterns. Read the sentences aloud while students tick the appropriate column. Check answers, then get students to produce the correct intonation.

Many of the exercises are worth using with the whole class to help them get used to oral practice. For example, Unit 1 Ex. 20 (future forms), Unit 2 Exs. 11, 14 (infinitive / -ing form / -ing/-ed adjectives), Unit 3 Ex. 11 (modal verbs), Unit 5 Ex. 22 (clauses / linking words), Unit 6 Ex. 22 (passive), Unit 7 Ex. 21 (reported speech).

Pairwork

Many of the exercises can easily be done by students in pairs. Pairwork is vital because it ensures that everyone gets the chance to speak. Like groupwork, it also allows you to spend time with students who might be having difficulties. There are several different ways to vary the pairwork. Here are some examples.

1. The simplest way is for the students to work together (in closed pairs) to complete the exercises orally first, then in writing. When most of the students have finished, check the answers in open pairs so that everyone in the class can hear.

Some exercises that work well this way are: Unit 1 Ex. 1 (tense forms), Unit 2 Ex. 10 (infinitive / -ing form), Unit 3 Ex. 8 (modal verbs), Unit 4 Ex. 4 (adjectives).

2. Some of the exercises can be done as dialogues. First students do the exercise in closed pairs: e.g., one student asks the questions, the other replies. When they finish, they reverse the roles. Then, in open pairs, choose a student to ask a question and one to reply.

Practising the dialogues in closed pairs helps the students gain confidence and allows you to monitor and correct errors before they have to speak in front of the whole class.

Exercises that have dialogue parts and suit this type of pairwork are:

Unit 1 Ex. 21 (tense forms), Unit 3 Ex. 11 (modal verbs), Unit 4 Ex. 24 (quite/rather), Unit 6 Ex. 15 (passive), Unit 6 Ex. 29 (causative).

Groupwork

1. Put the students into groups to go through the exercises orally first, then do the written work together. When most groups have finished, select a few to give feedback to the class at the end. Some of the exercises that work well in groups are:

Unit 1 Ex. 4, (tense forms), Unit 2 Ex. 3 (infinitive / -ing form), Unit 5 Ex. 24 (clauses of contrast), Unit 7 Ex. 6 (reported speech).

2. Communication activities:

Unit 12 Ex. 20 (so – neither – but) can be extended and used as a group activity by adapting the grid in the book.

1. Students ask and answer the questions about the grid in pairs.

2. They copy the grid, substituting their names for the names in the book.

3. They stand up and ask each other about whether they like dancing, have travelled abroad, etc.

4. Stop the activity when they have complete information about each person in their group. Choose a few students to give feedback to the whole class.

The activity gives students a lot of practice and allows you to listen for mistakes and problems.

Grammar boxes and tables

The grammar boxes and tables sum up the key points in each unit. Students can refer to these while they are doing the practice activities and later when they are revising. Encourage them to use the boxes and to reread them often. In addition to being a grammar reference, they also provide information on the spelling and pronunciation areas that can easily cause students problems.

Guessing new words

Students should be encouraged to use their own language and words that they already know in English to guess the meaning of new vocabulary.

In New Round-Up 6, students are able to use context to help them guess the meanings of new words. When students come across a new word they should try to decide what part of speech it is: a verb, a noun, an adjective, etc. They can then look at the other words in the sentence to determine what the word means.

Encourage students to keep a record of new vocabulary. The record should include the correct spelling of the word, the word used in a sentence, and the word's meaning.

In a recent study, researchers carefully chose a selection of songs and asked a group of joggers to (carefully) listen to them. They told the joggers to run exactly in time to the beat of the music and stop only when they felt too tired to continue. The results were extremely interesting. The researchers found that the joggers ran almost 15% longer than usual when they listened to the music. The joggers reported that listening to the music made them feel energetic and greatly improved their mood, too. So, what are you waiting for? If you don't normally listen to music when you exercise, why not bring along your MP3 player the next time you go jogging or to the gym? You'll probably be surprised with the results!

- You'd better introduce yourself first. If you do so, other students won't be nervous around you.
- Smile if you want people to approach you.
- Only if you are yourself, will students enjoy talking to you.
- If you join an afterschool club, you'll meet students with the same interests.

Writing Activity (Suggested Answer)

... It's also a good idea to introduce yourself first so that you appear friendly. If you do so, students won't feel nervous around you. Don't forget to smile if you want people to approach you. Nobody finds it easy to talk to someone who looks grumpy! And remember, only if you are yourself will students enjoy talking to you. Finally, if I were you, I'd join an afterschool club. There are lots of activities to choose from and if you join a club, you'll meet students with the same interests.

I hope my advice has been of some help. Try it out and let me know how you get on!

I spent the first couple of days looking around Tokyo city centre, which is amazingly modern and full of big shops. I bought an elegant Japanese fan which I thought you might like. Later in the week, I visited a Buddhist temple. It was very impressive. I also made a trip to Mount Fuji and took some gorgeous photos of it covered in snow.
 I'll tell you more when I get back.

Writing Activity (Suggested Answer)

Dear Lucy,

I've just come back from Japan and I had a wonderful time. I visited three different places and I bought some souvenirs.

I stayed at the Emerald hotel. It was so comfortable and my room was furnished in the traditional Japanese style, with sliding doors and mats on the floor. On my first morning there, I tasted some delicious Japanese soup called miso, which they serve for breakfast!

Writing Activity (Suggested Answer)

We were travelling by jeep in the African bush – a totally new experience for me! It had recently rained and there was still a smell of rain in the air, which I found very pleasant. As we were approaching a clearing, two giraffes suddenly appeared in front of us. "Wow!" exclaimed Paul, who's a really good photographer. "I've got to get this shot!" He grabbed his camera and managed to get some very good pictures of the animals together. The other outstanding moment of the safari for me was the flamingos. A little later we were driving through the bush when we heard a tremendous honking noise. It sounded like a flock of geese. Splashing around in a pool of water, looking for food, was a flock of flamingos. They looked amazing with their pink feathers and long legs but the noise was deafening! That evening we all felt pretty exhausted but we all agreed the safari had been the experience of a lifetime and we had had the time of our lives.

Progress Check 1

Ex. 4 (p. 48)

Narrator: Progress Check 1, Ex. 4, p. 48. You'll hear people talking in eight different situations. For questions 1–8, choose the best answer, A, B or C.

Narrator: One

You hear a woman talking. Why did she leave her job?

- A She found a new position.
- B She was fired.
- C She wanted to spend time with her children.

Woman:

I'd been working in that company for ten years, so to say that I needed a change would be an understatement. I always knew I would leave eventually, I just didn't know how. At one stage, I even thought they were going to give me the sack. I had come in late one too many mornings – but a harsh warning later and I was back at my desk for another few years. Then, early last year, I read an advertisement for a secretarial post working from home. It would have been nice to have had done this when the kids were growing up – but at least I don't have to worry about arriving late at work now!

Narrator: Two

You hear a man talking. What is his profession?

- A an animal trainer
- B a magician
- C a driver

Man:

In my day, it was every young boy's dream to join a circus. In fact, as a teenager I used to perform tricks for my friends and I even played around with the idea of taking up magic as a career. Looking back now, there was no way I could have competed with the magicians we have today, but at least I'm involved somewhat in the running of the circus. And it's not just about getting a lorry from A to B. I get to talk to the performers and even spend time with the animals from time to time, though, of course, I leave the feeding and handling to the experts.

Narrator: Three

You hear a witness being interviewed by police at a crime scene. What type of crime is being described?

- A robbery
- B burglary
- C speeding

Policeman:

Did you get a good look at the licence plate, sir?

Man:

I'm afraid not. It was too dark. Like I said, the hooded man jumped in and they sped away past the bank. They were out of sight in no time.

Policeman:

I see. And do you know the family personally?

Man:

Not really. But I'd pass here most days while walking my dog. To be honest, it was obvious they were going away for the summer. I guess someone must have spotted that and thought – easy job.

Narrator: Four

You hear a teacher talking to a student. Why is she talking to her?

- A to give advice
- B to give permission
- C to warn her

Woman:

I'm afraid you have to stay until you have finished all the exercises, Lisa. You know very well that I can only give you permission to leave early if you bring me a note from your parents. And anyway, you need to be putting in all the hours you can right now. I don't need to remind you that you have to get good marks to get into university. Don't get me wrong, I know the tournament is important to you, but at this crucial stage of the year, you had better put your studies first and tennis second. Believe me; you'll be sorry if you don't.

Narrator: Five

You hear a musician talking. How does she feel when she is performing?

- A nervous
- B relaxed
- C confident

Woman:

Over the years I've performed for audiences of more than 10,000 people in some of the most spectacular venues in the world. People assume that you get used to it – that you become more self-assured as the years pass, but as most musicians will tell you, that's rarely the case. I'm usually a bundle of nerves in the hours before a performance. Actually, it's often a relief to get on stage and play the first note. My body takes over and only then can I feel a sense of calmness, almost like I'm just another member of the audience listening along to the beautiful music.

Narrator: Six

You hear a music producer talking about Internet piracy. How does he think the problem should be dealt with?

- A impose fines on illegal downloaders
- B lower the cost of CDs
- C offer customers a new kind of product

Man:

In the US, some individuals have been forced to pay heavy fines to music companies for illegal downloading. And rightly so. If you break the law you have to pay the price. But I can't see music companies gaining much from going down this route. Illegal downloading is so widespread that it's almost beyond the reach of the law now. In my opinion, we've got to change the type of product we are selling to customers; something that can't be copied and shared over the Internet. For example, we could sell CDs with a T-shirt or a poster. But there's certainly no point in bringing half the teenagers of the country to court.

Narrator: Seven

You hear a dancer being interviewed on the radio. Why did he become a dancer?

- A He wanted to please his mother.
- B He followed his father's advice.
- C He was inspired by a performance he saw.

Interviewer: When did you discover your talent for dancing?

Dancer: I have always loved dancing ever since I saw an amateur production of West Side Story in the local town hall. After that I became single minded about becoming a dancer and no one was going to tell me it wasn't possible.

Interviewer: Did you have the support of your family to make a career of it?

Dancer: For years my mother used to plead with me to go to university and find a regular steady job. My father was fine with it though. When I told him about my plan to go to dance college, he accepted my decision and backed me all the way.

Narrator: Eight

You hear part of a talk on text messaging. What is the speaker's argument?

- A text messaging is changing the way teens communicate
- B text messaging is becoming more popular than phoning
- C text messaging is affecting students' school work

Man: Since the late 90s, text messaging has swept across the country and shows no signs of losing popularity. It does, however, have its opponents. For years, academics have been concerned about text language and how it can affect students' spelling and grammar. Few, however, have considered the social consequences of texting. Some teens now prefer texting to calling, regardless of cost, because they are used to the social distance of the text message. Texting discourages direct human contact and this is something we may need to start worrying about.

Progress Check 2

Ex. 4 (p.121)

Narrator: Progress Check 2, Ex. 4, p. 121. You'll hear an interview with a man called Michael Frank who runs a museum. For questions 1–10, complete the sentences. You now have forty-five seconds to look at Part Two.

DJ: For many of us there is nothing more relaxing than admiring beautiful works of art in a museum or gallery. Far fewer people would choose to spend a day looking at bad art! Michael Frank, the founder of the Museum of Bad Art in Boston hopes to change our minds. Michael, welcome to the show.

MF: Hello.

DJ: How did you come up with the idea for the Museum of Bad Art?

MF: Well, one morning, I spotted a painting in a rubbish bin outside my home. At that time, I was an antique dealer, so I was always on the look out for nice pieces of art. That painting however was awful! But "Lucy in the Field with Flowers", as I have since called it, inspired me to open the museum.

DJ: How did you go about collecting the other pieces of bad art in the museum?

MF: All in all, it took about a year and a half to gather the collection. My co-founder, Louise Reilly, and I looked in dustbins, charity shops and dusty attics all over the USA. We even had some paintings sent to us from Japan. By 1994, we had gathered the biggest collection of bad art in the world.

DJ: And how did you decide on a location for the museum?

MF: At first we looked for a location in Boston city centre, but we soon realised we couldn't afford the rent we were being asked for. In fact, we had very little money. So, eventually I found a cheap space in the basement of a cinema in the Dedham suburb of south Boston. We held our first exhibition there in March 1995.

DJ: I see. But what exactly is bad art? For example, will you find drawings from five-year-olds in the museum?

MF: No, no. You won't find kids' 'fridge drawings' or ugly images from advertisements or travel brochures. Basically, all of the pieces on display in the museum were created by adults or teenagers who were seriously trying to make 'art'. The problem is; most of us can't paint or draw very well! So, most of the artists on show are people who had far more emotion than they had skill!

DJ: OK. And what are visitors' reactions when they walk around the museum? Do a lot of people laugh at what they see?

MF: Surprisingly, very few do. And we don't encourage it either. I think that a lot of our visitors relate to the artists on show. At some stage, we have all tried to write a poem or draw a picture and failed terribly. But that doesn't mean we didn't feel the same emotions that the great artists felt. That's why I opened the museum; to display the works of art of people who could never be artists!

DJ: And has the museum been a success?

MF: I think so. We only get around 120 visitors a week, but our webpage, which displays a selection of our collection, has become very popular. We receive around 20,000 hits a month! We've also brought out a book with pictures of 70 of the museum's more popular works along with reviews, written by me, of each picture.

DJ: I'm sure a lot of our listeners will be interested in paying your museum a visit soon, Michael. Is there an entrance fee?

MF: Admission is $3 for adults and it's free for students.

DJ: Thanks for coming in, Michael.

MF: My pleasure.

Progress Check 3

Ex. 4 (p. 174)

Narrator: Progress Check 3, Ex. 4, p. 174. You will hear five different people talking about their achievements. For questions 1–5, choose from the list (A–F) what each person achieved. Use the letters only once. There is one extra letter which you do not need to use. You now have thirty seconds to look at Part Three.

Speaker 1

I couldn't believe it when I got the phone call. I was sure the interview hadn't gone well and that my qualifications weren't good enough. One of the candidates I met outside had a diploma in Economics and could speak French! So, I was surprised when I heard the good news. I felt like I was wearing a medal around my neck for the rest of the day! Now, I can't wait to get started. Who knows? This could be the first step towards great things for me.

Speaker 2

I never imagined I would see my poems in print. After all, writing was just a hobby for me. I didn't even study English at university! It was just something I enjoyed doing for an hour or so after work, or at the weekends. It was my wife who first encouraged me to contact the publishing company. They told me to gather a collection of my best work and send it to them. The rest is history! I don't expect to win any awards, but I hope a few copies are sold!

Speaker 3

I was so happy when I was handed the degree. I didn't come first in the class, or anywhere near it, but I think I felt prouder than anyone else in the room! It's been a long three years and, to be honest, there were times when I didn't think I'd make it. I spent a lot of late nights writing essays and studying for exams. I'm just glad my family and my lecturers were there to help me through it. What next? Well, I hope to travel a little now; maybe even learn a new language. I certainly want a few adventures before I start looking for a job!

Speaker 4

I never even realised that I had a talent for spelling until my English teacher advised me to take part in the competition. She knew how much I loved reading and must have thought that I could do well. I'm so glad she did. It's been a wonderful experience. I'm not very good at sports, so I never imagined that I'd ever win a trophy! And next month, I'm going to the national spelling championships organised by The Times newspaper. I can't wait!

Speaker 5

I started the classes around two years ago and already, I think I'm quite fluent. It was my sister who said I should take an evening class. I was happy at work but I needed a new challenge in my life. At first, I thought about doing a business course; I'm so glad I changed my mind! It feels great to be able to go to a foreign country and speak to the locals in their own tongue. And, if I ever do look for a new job, I'm happy that I'll be able to add something new to my CV.

Progress Check 4

Ex. 4 (p. 226)

Narrator: Progress Check 4, Ex. 4, p. 226. You will hear a magician being interviewed on a radio programme. For questions 1–7, choose the correct answer (A, B or C). You now have one minute to look at Part Four.

Host: I'm now joined by the American magician David McBride. David is currently touring the country with his show 'The Great Escaper' in which he performs the stunts of the famous escape artist Harry Houdini. David also released a biography about Houdini last January. David, could you start by telling us a little about Houdini's early life? He was born in Europe, wasn't he?

David: Yes, that's right. Although he claimed to have been born in America in many of his books, Houdini was actually born in Budapest, Hungary in 1874.

Host: And his real name wasn't Houdini, I imagine?

David: No, he was born Ehrich Weiss. The Weiss family moved to America when Ehrich was four and settled in New York City.

Host: And how did Ehrich become interested in performing?

David: Well, as a teenager, he came across the autobiography of the French magician Jean Robert-Houdin. Young Ehrich was so fascinated by the book that he chose the stage name Houdini in honour of his hero and decided to become a professional magician.

Host: And did he immediately concentrate on escape acts?

David: Not immediately, but it wasn't long before he discovered his talent for escaping. He became internationally popular in 1900 when he toured Europe as 'The Handcuff King'. He went around the continent asking local policemen to handcuff him and lock him in their jails to see if he could escape. Of course, he always did.

David: So, things never went wrong?

Host: Well, there were some narrow escapes. On one occasion, in London, a special set of handcuffs that took seven years to make was put on Houdini. Houdini was clearly having great difficulty escaping from these; many hours had passed and the audience began to wonder if Houdini had failed. Then, his wife, Bess, went on stage and gave him a kiss. An hour later Houdini had broken free - but many people now think that Bess kissed Houdini with the key for the handcuffs in her mouth!

Host: But it wasn't only handcuffs or prison cells that Houdini could escape from. Houdini performed a huge number of different stunts, many of which seem very dangerous. Do you include these stunts in your show?

David: Generally no. Many of Houdini's escape stunts depended on him putting his body at risk of injury. For example, Houdini often had to dislocate his shoulders and wrists or cough up small keys from his stomach! I would be willing to try these stunts - but the problem is I don't have the same body type as Houdini. He had incredible strength and flexibility that allowed him to do stunts that most people, including me, would find impossible. So, I perform the stunts that aren't so extreme, but which I still hope are very entertaining.

Host: So, what can we see at your show, then?

David: Well, the show is like a biography on stage. I perform the stunts in the order that Houdini performed them during his career. I think each stunt gets more and more exciting for the audience - it really shows how Houdini developed as a performer throughout his life.

Host: David, it's been fascinating to talk to you. But before you leave, I should tell you we've had lots of people phoning in asking where they can buy tickets for your show.

David: Well, my Manchester shows are sold out, but you can purchase tickets online for my shows in the Gate Theatre in London.
