CHILD GENIUS!

In 1993, Askrit Jaswall was born in India. His parents could soon see that he was more intelligent than other children. He could talk when he was only ten months old and could read adult books at the age of five. Medicine was one of his favourite interests, and he decided to become a doctor. When he was six years old, doctors in a hospital said he could watch them. He spent many hours watching them and he also read a lot of books about medicine.

Askrit went to university in India at the age of eleven to study medicine. He wants to finish his studies in India and then go to Harvard University in America. When he was younger, he saw people dying in the streets in India. They couldn't go to hospital because they were poor and didn't have any money. Askrit wants to help people like these in the future.
