

Unit Quiz 9B

Lola: Do you know what Alex asked me last night? He asked me if he could go out this weekend with his friends to that new club that just opened in town. I think it's called "El Teatro."

Glen: Well, he is 16. Are you going to allow him to go?

Lola: Yes, yes, I'll allow him. No, the problem is that it doesn't open till 11 p.m., and according to Alex, all his friends are going to be there until about 3 a.m.

Glen: OK, I see what you're worried about. I don't think that can be true about his friends, though, can it? When I was 16 I wasn't allowed to go out at all!

Lola: I bet you did anyway! I was allowed to go out with my friends on the weekend, but we were supposed to be back home by 11. Not going out at 11.

Glen: You were allowed out until 11?! My parents were very strict, now that I think about it. We could go out with friends on the weekend, but we had to give them my friends' parents' phone numbers, which was always really embarrassing.

Lola: That's not very strict.

Glen: But wait, that's not all. We couldn't talk at the dinner table, and we had to ask permission to leave the table.

Lola: Well, now that is strict! No, my parents weren't like that. We weren't allowed to eat candy, but that was just because mom was always concerned about our health.

Glen: Yes, that's understandable. So, what are you going to say to Alex about the club? You're not going to let him go, are you?
