Vain magazine spoke with Sara Campbell, from the All-Star women's basketball team. Here's what she had to say.

Vain Magazine: Sara, you've been a controversial figure this season. Can you talk about that?

Sara Campbell: Sure. You know, I'm brutally honest, and I say what I think. Some of my team members have a hard time with that. They don't want to hear that they're not performing as well as they could, or that they're not working hard enough.

VM: Do you think that some of your words have torn your team apart, rather than helped it?

SC: Maybe. If I had been more compassionate, perhaps people wouldn't have been offended. I should have been more sensitive. But I can't lie! I think we can recover from this and become a better team.

VM: What about your personal life?

SC: Well, I don't really like to talk about myself. I'm pretty discreet, and I don't want to be in the spotlight. It's hard being me!

VM: What do you mean?

SC: I mean, I'm a tall woman with a loud voice. People are scared of me. It's hard to get close to people.

VM: What would you like to say to our readers about that?

SC: I'm actually pretty caring. You just have to get past my tough exterior.

VM: I see. Thanks for talking with us, Sara.

SC: It was my pleasure.
