SINBAD

1

Our story begins in old Baghdad.

A rich old man is very ill in bed. He calls to his son, Sinbad.

'I'm dying, Sinbad,' says the old man. 'You can have all my money, my son. But you must be careful with it.'
'Please don't die, Father,' says Sinbad unhappily.

rich with a lot of money

Sinbad's father dies, and Sinbad is unhappy for a long time. But one day he thinks: 'I'm a very lucky man. I have a lot of money now, some beautiful things, and a big house.'

With his father's money, Sinbad buys new things to wear . . .

. . . and expensive things to eat from the market.

Every evening Sinbad's friends come to his house. They eat and drink all night.

market where people go to buy things in the street

But after a year, Sinbad has no more money.

Every day angry shopkeepers come to Sinbad's house. 'Where's our money?' they ask angrily.

Sinbad goes to the market, and he sells his father's best tables and chairs. With the money he buys some beautiful carpets.

'I can sail to different countries,' Sinbad thinks. 'And I can sell these carpets for a lot of money. Then I can give the money back to the shopkeepers.'

Next, Sinbad finds an old ship with a very old captain.

captain the most important person on a ship

Three days later Sinbad is ready to leave Baghdad. He talks excitedly to all the sailors on the ship. 'I want to bring back a lot of money,' he tells them.

The ship sails away from Baghdad and out to sea. Sinbad begins to feel ill.

After two days at sea, Sinbad is very ill. But then he sees a beautiful island. 'Please stop!' he says to the captain.

Sinbad and some of the sailors land on the island. Sinbad takes a barrel with him. He wants to look for water. The captain stays on the ship.

barrel a tall round box; you put things to drink in it

Sinbad and the sailors are all very happy. 'What a wonderful island!' says Sinbad. 'Let's sit down and make a fire.'

They sit near the fire and they begin to sing. Suddenly the island moves. 'The island is moving!' says Sinbad. 'This isn't an island,' cry the sailors. 'It's a whale!'

Sinbad quickly gets into the barrel. The whale moves down into the water. All the sailors are now in the sea. 'Help! Help!' they cry.

Now it is dark, and Sinbad is at sea in the barrel. 'Hello! Hello!' he cries. But nobody answers.

The next morning Sinbad looks out of the barrel. He is now alone on a small island. Far away he can see a big white stone.

He goes to the stone and he looks carefully at it.
'What's this?' he thinks.

Suddenly the sky becomes black. Sinbad feels very afraid. 'Help! What's happening?' he cries. He looks up at the sky. A very big bird is flying nearer and nearer.

He begins to run away. 'Now I understand!' he thinks, 'That bird is a Roc, and that big white stone is a Roc's egg.'

The Roc flies out of the valley and it lands near a village. The men from the village run to see it, and the Roc flies away. Sinbad comes out from under the dead animal.

'Who are you?' ask the men. 'I'm Sinbad the Sailor,' says Sinbad. 'Would you like to buy these jewels from the valley?'

The men are surprised. 'Nobody goes into the valley,' they say. 'The snakes eat everything there.'

'Not me!' laughs Sinbad. 'You're very lucky!' say the men.

The people from the village buy Sinbad's jewels. He's a rich man now, and he wants to go back to Baghdad. 'We can find a ship for you,' say the people from the village.

In Baghdad Sinbad gives money to the shopkeepers. 'Are you truly Sinbad?' they ask. 'Yes!' he says. And he tells them about his adventures.

Sinbad's friends are very happy to see him. Sinbad tells them all about his adventures.

But after some time Sinbad is not happy in Baghdad. 'I want to go back to sea,' he tells his friends.

A week later, Sinbad leaves Baghdad on a big, tall ship. He's very excited. 'It's time for some more adventures,' he tells the captain.

The ship sails for three weeks. But one night there's a storm. The ship breaks here and there, and it must land.

In the morning the ship lands near a beach. Sinbad and some of the sailors go to find help.

When Sinbad comes out from under the ground, he meets some sailors. 'I'm Sinbad the Sailor,' he tells them. The sailors are surprised. 'Sinbad? But Sinbad is dead,' they say. 'Well, I'm not dead now!' Sinbad says. 'And I want to meet your captain.'

The sailors take Sinbad to their ship.

'Are you Sinbad the Sailor?' asks the captain. 'Yes,' says Sinbad. 'Then, sail with us and tell us about your adventures,' says the captain.

The ship sails for many weeks. One morning, the captain sees an island. Sinbad and some of the sailors land and begin to explore the island.

The sailors find a very big bird's egg. 'Don't touch it!' says Sinbad. 'It's a Roc's egg!' But the sailors throw stones at the egg.

Sinbad sails from Baghdad with the presents for the King of Serendib.

The King of Serendib is happy to see Sinbad again. 'Stay here!' he says to Sinbad. 'And tell me more about the wise Caliph of Baghdad.'

'I'm sorry,' says Sinbad. 'I must go back to Baghdad now. I'm tired of adventures.'

Sinbad begins to go home. One day, a sea monster attacks the ship. 'Help!' cries Sinbad. 'Not more adventures!'

monster an animal that is very bad to look at

The monster is angry. It eats some of the sailors from the ship. Quickly, Sinbad gets into a little boat and rows away.

Sinbad lands on an island. He leaves his boat on the beach, and goes to explore.

Sinbad finds a cave. He can hear a noise. 'Someone's crying,' he thinks. He looks into the cave and sees a young woman. In front of her, there's a monster. It is sleeping. 'She's the monster's prisoner,' thinks Sinbad. 'I must help her.'

Later, the monster leaves to look for something to eat. Sinbad goes into the cave. 'Who are you?' asks the woman.

'I'm Sinbad the Sailor,' he says. 'I can help you.' 'Thank you,' she says, 'I'm Yasmin.'

Sinbad takes Yasmin to the boat on the beach.

‘Can you row?’ Sinbad asks her.

‘Of course I can,’ she says.

‘Well, here’s my boat. Let’s row.’

Sinbad and Yasmin row all night. In the morning Sinbad sees his ship.

Sinbad and Yasmin climb up to the ship. ‘Sinbad!’ the sailors cry. ‘You’re alive!’ ‘Of course,’ says Sinbad. ‘And this is my friend, Yasmin.’

Just then, pirates attack the ship. The pirates make Sinbad and Yasmin their prisoners.

ivory this is white and hard, and comes from the long tusks on an elephant's face Sinbad and Yasmin climb a tree. The elephants are walking into a cave. 'Let's go into that cave,' says Sinbad.

In the cave Sinbad and Yasmin find lots of dead elephants. 'Look at all these dead elephants,' says Sinbad.

Sinbad takes the hunter to the dead elephants. The hunter is very happy. 'Thank you, Sinbad,' he says. 'Now we don't need to kill any elephants. We have lots of ivory here.'

'You can go now,' says the hunter, and he gives Sinbad and Yasmin a lot of money.

Sinbad and Yasmin sail back to Baghdad. Yasmin is very excited. 'I want to meet all your friends,' she says.

Sinbad takes Yasmin to his house. Yasmin is surprised. 'You're very rich!' she says.

'But money isn't the most important thing,' says Sinbad. 'We must help people, too.'

Sinbad then goes into the streets of Baghdad and he gives some of his money to the people there with no homes. 'Thank you, Sinbad!' they cry. 'You're a truly wise and good man.'

GRAMMAR CHECK

There is/there are: affirmative, negative, questions, and short answers

We use there is (or there's) and there are to talk about things and people in a place.

We use there's with a singular noun, and there are with a plural noun.

There's a storm.

There are three big snakes behind him.

Negative forms are there isn't and there aren't.

There isn't a boat.

There aren't any pirates in Serendib.

Question forms are Is there and Aren't there. We do not use contractions in short affirmative answers.

Is there a king in your country? No, there isn't.

Are there any elephants here? Yes, there are.

Is there a monster?

Yes, there is. ✓

Yes, there's. ✗

1 Complete the sentences with the affirmative or negative form of there is/there are.

GRAMMAR CHECK

Would like or like

We often use would like to offer things, to invite people, or to ask for things politely.

Would you like an apple, Sinbad? Yes, I'd like that red apple, please. ('d = would)

We also use would like (or 'd like) + infinitive to talk about specific things that people want to do.

He'd like to go on an adventure.

They'd like to leave the island.

Would like is more polite than want.

I'd like to eat something. (polite)

I want to eat something. (not polite)

We use like (without would) to talk in general about nice (or not nice) things.

Sinbad likes exciting adventures.

Do you like apples, Yasmin? No, I don't like them very much.

3 Choose the correct word or words to complete the sentences.

a 'Would/Do you like to buy this carpet?' asks the shopkeeper.

b Sinbad is in Serendib, but he'd like/he likes to leave now.

c 'I'd like/I like Baghdad,' says Yasmin. 'It's very nice.'

d 'Where is the nearest island?' asks Sinbad. 'I'd like/I like to find it.'

e 'Would/Does Sinbad like his new house?' asks his friend.

f We'd/We like adventure stories. We read a lot of them.

g Would/Do they like to read this book now?

4 Write a sentence with would like or like that means the same as the first sentence.

a Are you interested in football? Do you like football?

b Do you want to see the new Sinbad film?

c We're interested in whales.

d I want a drink of water, please.

e Is she interested in jewels?

f We want to go to that island, please.

GRAMMAR CHECK

Demonstrative pronouns: this, that, these, and those

We use this and that with singular nouns.

This is a nice carpet.*

I know that ship.

We use these and those with plural nouns.

- e 'That/Those pirates are attacking our ship!' cries Yasmin.
- f Sinbad follows that/those big, strange animal.
- g Sinbad and Yasmin are helping that/those people.

GRAMMAR

Countable and uncountable nouns: some and any

We use some and any to talk about an indefinite quantity or number, when we cannot or do not want to say exactly how much or how many we are thinking of.

Sinbad buys some carpets.

Now we don't need to kill any elephants.

We use some in affirmative sentences with plural countable nouns and with uncountable nouns.

There are some jewels on the beach.

There is some water on the boat.

We use any in negative sentences with plural countable nouns and with uncountable nouns.

The sailors can't see any monsters.

Sinbad hasn't got any money.

7 Complete the sentences with some or any.

- The sailors want to make a fire, but there isn't any wood.
- 'I'm a prisoner and I need help!' cries Yasmin.
- Sinbad and Yasmin follow elephants to a cave.
- At first, Sinbad can't fight the big snake because he hasn't got armour.

GRAMMAR CHECK

Suffixes: -er, -r, and -or

When we add the suffix -er to a verb or noun (or -r when the verb or noun ends in -e), we make a word for a person.

The man hunts elephants. He's a hunter.

Sinbad has a lot of wonderful adventures. He's an adventurer.

We can also make a word for a person by adding the suffix -or to a verb.

Sinbad sails from Baghdad. He's a sailor.

If the word ends in a short vowel + consonant, we usually double the consonant.

jewel – jeweller run – runner begin – beginner (but visitor and listener)
