/5

An inspirational businessman

1 ____
Steven Bartlett has recently been chosen to take part in the British TV show Dragon's Den. On the show, the participants present inventions and business ideas with the aim of getting financial support. The judges are a team of successful businesspeople who invest their own money in the winning ideas. Steven has become the show's youngest ever judge at the age of 29.

2 ____
Steven's family moved to England from Botswana when he was two years old. They didn't have a lot of money. If he wanted nice things, he had to work for them. As a teenager, he started organising social events at his secondary school and he found that he could make money from it. Although he began a business studies degree at university, he left to start his first social media company without getting any qualifications.

3 ____
Like many people of his generation, Steven grew up with social media. He knew better than many older people how important it was for business. For one of his first projects, he needed to get people to visit his website, but traditional ways of attracting people, like posters, didn't work. That's when he had the idea of asking for the help of social media influencers with thousands of followers. He gave them money to display links to his website on their social media feeds. In this way, Steven could get many more visitors to his site than by traditional methods.

4 ____
Steven and his business partners realised that they could use their knowledge of social media to help other companies. However, in order to do that, they needed as many followers as possible. They created lots of social media accounts where they posted comments designed to attract followers. They also bought social media pages and encouraged influencers to work for them. Their idea worked and, in just a few years, some of the biggest companies in the world were queuing up to get their help with online marketing.

5 ____
Steven is more than just a businessman, though, because he's also a podcaster and a writer. In his podcast called "The Diary of a CEO", Steven talks about his journey to success while interviewing other successful people. The podcast has been a hit with the public and it's been downloaded millions of times. And as if that wasn't enough, he's also written a best-selling book in which he shares his secrets on how to be successful. Interestingly, although he's a millionaire, he tells people that money doesn't always buy you happiness!

4 Read the text again. Are the statements True (T) or False (F)?

- 1 Steven has been a TV presenter for a number of years. T / F
- 2 Steven is expected to give money to the winner of Dragon's Den. T / F
