Calling all filmmakers!

Here at the National Drama Society (NDS) we are looking for filmmakers to make a cool short film.

This is a competition for 11–15-year-olds, and the prize is a free two-week filmmaking course at one of our colleges. That's right, you don't have to pay £1 while everyone else pays £350.

You don't need any complicated equipment, just your mobile phone or tablet. Clips must be up to three minutes long, and can be about anything.

Please email your video to our website by 17th August. We can't accept entries to our social media.

B

Hi Mario,

Did you see the message on the school noticeboard today? It's about a filmmaking competition, and you can win a free course with fourteen days of classes at a filmmaking college. Do you still play in your band? I'd like to enter the competition with a video of your band. Would you and the band like to help me? Maybe we can film you playing in the skate park. Not the one you usually go to in Bankside as it's too busy, but the one in March Hill. Does that sound fun? What do you think?

Anya

C

Hi Anya,

That's an excellent idea, let's do it! I need to speak to the rest of Crossroots (the band) first, but I know they'll say yes. How about this Saturday at 2 p.m.? (I'm at art class from 12 to 1 p.m. so can't do any earlier.)

You're great at making videos, too! :)
